

F. S. CLUB GIVES

BRILLIANT DANCE AT ARMORY
One of the largest and most brilliant social functions of the season was a dance given last evening in the State Armory by the C. S. Club. All appointments were beautiful in every detail and the many hand-loomed gowns in evidence added splendor to the scene. A color scheme of pink and white was carried out in a very charming manner. Streamers of pink and white were draped from the four corners of the room to the central light, from which was suspended a shower of pink crepe paper. The lights were capped with pink and white shades. Dancing was indulged in until 2 o'clock and during the evening light refreshments were served. Included among the guests were members of the school set home for the Easter holidays and a large number from out of town. The committee was composed of Miss Mercedes Burns, Miss Marie Cusco, Miss Anna Coyne, Miss Cottrell Love, Miss Mary See, Miss Freda Schuyler, Louis N. Cuse, William P. McNulty, J. S. Sisson, Madigan, J. Howard, Roosevelt, C. Clarke, Rosalie and James Rodgers.

Afternoon of Vanderbilts. An afternoon of Vanderbilts featured the semi-monthly meeting of the Women's Culture Club held yesterday afternoon in the Carnegie Free Library. The program was cleverly presented and provided much amusement for the one hundred club women in attendance. Dr. Katherine Wakefield, the club president, presided; Miss Pearl Keck was in charge of the music and appeared in the role of the musical dean at the Rappeneau College. The program was as follows: First speaker, "White History," instructor, Mrs. William C. Schubert; "History," instructor, John R. Davis; "Geography," instructor, Mrs. Ivy Burns; "Literature," instructor, Mrs. L. S. Mitchell; concert by students of music; second speaker, "Department of Art," instructor, Mrs. Harry Ross; "Department of Music," instructor, Mrs. William M. Ross; "Department of Science and Scientific Teams," Mrs. W. R. Chapman. Those appearing in the classes wore costumes similar to the apparel of the modern flapper.

One of the unique entertainments of the whole program was the representation by Mrs. Van Nata, of Violin Denna, who with other screen stars appeared as a leader in physical exercise drill. For the exercise of the drill Mrs. Van Nata demonstrated her ability as a lighting change artist by giving a clever and true dramatic narration of "Charlie Chaplin."

The women appeared in costume costumes and went through a routine of physical culture motions with the aid of talking motion picture records. At the conclusion they made their exit and the audience then was given an opportunity to view the results of the running records. Dr. H. N. Sherrick will give a talk on "The Veterinary in a Sanitarium" at the next regular meeting to be held Monday afternoon.

April 16.

Mrs. Stoner Wins Trip.

Mrs. Emma J. Stoner, wife of Cyrus M. Stoner, 200 South Sixth street, West Side, is one of the winners of the "Marathon," conducted by the Women's Benefit Association of the Maeser. Mrs. Stoner is a member of Connellsville Review No. 231 and has several more members and written up more protection than any other member of the local league. Although she won first prize to the national convention to be held at Los Angeles, she had to write $3,000 insurance, but has $4,500 in cash pending.

Mrs. Stoner will leave for Los Angeles May 23. Special trains will leave all states and from Canada for the Pacific coast. A boat trip will also be included. The "Marathoners" are making at Seattle for Vancouver and back at Victoria, the capital of British Columbia. In the D.A. of Angels Mrs. Stoner will be one of the sisters to be crowned by Mrs. Pauline M. West, supreme commander. Mrs. Stoner won a free trip to Port Huron, Mich., and Canada in the previous contest conducted by the Women's Benefit Association. About fifteen contestants expect to meet in Los Angeles.

LANDMARKS THAT MAKE CITY

Occasionally Townmen Don't Realize Just What Has Been the Attraction That Brings Visitors.

No town finds out how many shrines and landmarks it has until some one installs a rubberneck wagon. It ought to be quite a revelation for many of its inhabitants to ride about in the sightseeing vehicles of their own town; sometimes as instructive as visiting the museums of local historical societies.

Visitors in their expressed desire for the local sights, always betray unceasingly what the city is most famed for. It doesn't much matter what is most important to the town itself.

Atkins, who has long since discovered that the shadow of the witches is "over it all," and has restingly erected billboards at its main gateway welcoming the motorists to "The Witch City," and Fredricktown, Mo., although maintaining stoutly the flimsiness of the Barbara Fraticide legend, is willing to humor the visitors about it.

Whatever makes a town noted abroad, it is best to make the most of it for the world will have it so.

What are what popular imagination or association make such, and which places even this with greater enthusiasm than the general guide books daily narrates to eager listeners all the "facts and traditions" he can gather about them? (See Louis Glorie-Denocrat.)

Blacklock.

To a notorious resident of London we use the word "blacklock." This person, Blacklock by name, lived beyond the close of the Eighteenth century in the vicinity of the Strand, and manufactured a compound metal which had some of the glitter of gold, but was readily distinguishable from the precious metal by its lesser weight and other palpable differences.

Consequently Blacklock's name was eventually applied to shams, counterfeits and spurious gold.

As a noted criminal he had been tried in a day of copper and iron, formerly much used in the manufacture of inexpensively "gold." This, although it presented the appearance of gold, was a cheap substance—Chicago Journal.

Big Irrigation Plan.

A great irrigation project, which is of interest because it's located in the heart of the dark continent, has been recently completed. It is known as the Lake Mertz conservation dam and is located along the lower reaches of Sunday's river. It is second only to the great Aswan dam in Egypt in size and importance. The new dam is the tenth high and the length of the dam is 4,470 feet. It impounds 25,000,000 cubic yards of water and serves 4,600 acres of land. It means the utilization of the great open of land which will now be agricultural and stockbreeding purposes.

Boy Is Born.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie P. Miller are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a eight pound son on Good Friday. The new arrival has been named William Paul. Mrs. Miller was formerly Miss Grace Turley of South Connellsville.

Infant Daughter Dies.

An infant daughter of Fred Calford and Mrs. William E. Doherty died this morning at the family home in the West Side. The interment was made today in Hill Grove Cemetery. The baby was born yesterday morning.

Earl Carnarvon Worse.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 30.—The illness of the Earl of Carnarvon took a sudden turn for the worse this afternoon. His condition is characterized as critical.

Part Time.

"Want you really come—it will be a lovely evening?"

"It can't dear; I'm in half morning." "Well, only stay for half the evening—Film Fun."

IN HER NAME NOW

"He used to be the richest man in town."

"Isn't he now?"

"No, his wife's the richest woman in town."

Dishwasher Preferred.

It married a dishwasher. And now he wishes he'd wed a girl who knew how to wash dishes.

TUESDAY EVENING, APRIL 6, 1926.

A BILL TO KILL.

Among the numerous bills introduced in the Legislature, which it would be very much better to kill in committee than to waste the time of members in seriously considering with a view to enactment, is a proposed amendment to the third-class city law relating to the publication of ordinances.

This bill, known as House Bill No. 528, would restrict the publication of ordinances in newspapers to those which prescribe a penalty for the violation thereof. Even these would be published only in part, the bill providing,

"That where the ordinance in question is a code upon a given subject, it shall not be necessary to set forth at length in the advertisement the subject matter of the said code but the advertiser may, instead, give a general description thereof or refer to the short title thereof and give further notice that copies thereof are available at the office of the city clerk."

Everybody who has had any experience in the administration of third-class city or borough governments knows that not one citizen in 500 or more has enough interest in municipal affairs to take the time to go to the clerk's office to read the text of an ordinance or to secure a copy of it in pamphlet form. For such knowledge as they have of new municipal legislation they depend upon the local newspapers, through the news columns when new ordinances are proposed and the advertising columns when the full text is published. Publication by pamphlet makes no appeals to the average property owner.

If the proposed bill becomes a law it will mean that property owners will be kept in ignorance of ordinances because the digest or abstract which the bill would authorize to be published would cover so little information concerning the cases that it would be almost valueless as a form of publicity. It is conceivable that circumstances could exist under the proposed amendment whereby a council could "put over" on the property owners highly objectionable or unfair legislation with it coming to public knowledge in time to prevent its enactment and approval.

A municipal government is an enterprise in which the property owners and voters are the shareholders. They are entitled to the fullest information about everything connected with the administration of affairs. No greater evil could exist than to attempt to keep new legislation secret which to a certain extent would be a result of the proposed amendment of the third-class city law.

The only possible justification of the proponents is that the municipality would save a few dollars in advertising. As an offset to a false economy which would deprive property owners of their right to be fully informed as to municipal affairs, the city councils would be subjected to the suspicion that they are unwilling to submit their actions to the scrutiny of the public.

Of course, the rank swindlers should be put out of business and punished. But the public factor in this connection will be who can instruct the people how to discriminate in investments.

would think it necessary to organize against a proposed law making the county treasurer the receiver of taxes. Apparently, however, it is human nature to hold onto a job no matter if it does have its unpleasant features.

The planting season coming on it is both timely and necessary for the members of the Legislature to apply themselves to raising money.

The commemoration of Easter is, of course, a strong attraction for church members, but does not the interest in the services on that day suggest the possibilities in giving some of its features on other than one Sunday in the year?

Opening the antislavery drive in Somerset county by blowing up a steel coal car may be a means of making more names open shop.

The results indicate that many of the every-member canvassers are qualifying as managers of collection agencies.

Having himself set the example of fleeing from a dangerous and embarrassing situation, the ex-killer cannot consistently elide his new wife for escaping from Dooms.

The People?

Plumburg Gazette Times.

A nation-wide campaign by the Department of Justice against what are commonly called "get-rich-quick" swindlers is announced. It is estimated that unscrupulous people are being defrauded of "hundreds of millions annually" by their devices. Apparently something ought to be done to protect the gullible. If it lies within the authority of the Justice Department to do anything effectual, more power to its officers' elbows.

Yet we are not sanguine that prosecution of a considerable number of knaves of the despicable type mentioned will save a great deal to those who are incompetent in money matters. These swindlers are the descendants of a very familiar sort of human nature. If the desire to get something for nothing is not inherent in us, we are human to this particular type of avariciousness. It is a natural idea that the victims of fake stock gurus are usually ignorant in the sense that they have had no opportunity to acquaint themselves with facts that have been blazoned for years. It is questionable also if a great many of these people would be thankful for being deprived of opportunity to take an alluring chance.

When the authorities got after Ponzi, whose foreign exchange swindlers were one of the most notorious frauds practiced in recent years, scores of his dupes were ready to argue that he was legitimate and his prosecution was prompted by jealousy of his "business" success.

Really, what is needed to put a stop to the "get-rich-quick" swindlers, or to reduce the numbers of active swindlers, is to enlighten the people whom they prey upon. And that presents a very difficult problem. If they do not become wary when the newspapers lay before them the facts of fraudulent operations of precisely the kind that never fail to attract victims by the hundreds, what hope is there of saving them? In final analysis it is from themselves that they must be saved.

In any case there is difficulty in distinguishing between a fraud and a swindle. Entirely honorable people sometimes may be interfered with by a campaign against everything of the kind. In that case the public would be deprived for a time at least, of utilities that ought to be developed without unnecessary delay, yet whose value cannot be satisfactorily demonstrated until they have been put on the market. Some of the greatest modern inventions were "peeled" a long while before the capital essential to their development was secured. Under the operation of "blue sky" laws they might have been lost.

Of course, the rank swindlers should be put out of business and punished. But the public factor in this connection will be who can instruct the people how to discriminate in investments.

Just Folks

Edgar A. Guest.

WERE YOU A SUCCESS TODAY?

You would be a success tomorrow.
But that is not always true.

And whatever the task, this is what men ask:

Were you a success today?

You would come to the greater credit.
Big deeds shall your world tell;

But today, in the end, with the task you have,

Would you say that did it well?

Tomorrow you'll rise to splendor.
Tomorrow you'll win, you say;

But will you do it best with the hunger test?

Did you do your best today?

You would come to some fine achievement.

And truly I hope you may.

You will prove your worth on this fine day.

Did you prove your worth today?

Don't wait for fame for tomorrow.

Shame isn't built that way.

Fame shall come to you by the things you do.

So how did you score today?

You would be a success tomorrow.

Look back at your work and say,

You held your pride in this fine day.

You were a success today?

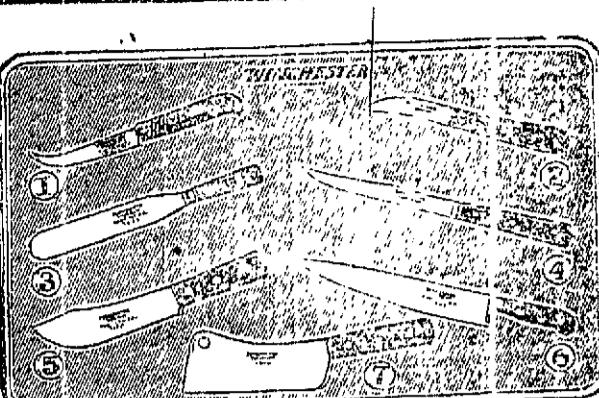

Was it success today?

Mount Pleasant Continues Its Fight for Passenger Service

Committee Will Visit Officials of Pennsylvania Railroad.

CHURCH OFFICERS NAMED

Special to The Courier.

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 3.—Town council Monday night voted to again present to the Pennsylvania Railroad Company the desire of the town for passenger and express service. The president was authorized to name a committee to confer with representatives of the company with a view to having the town placed again on the railroad's time table.

It was also decided, on the recommendation of Burgess William M. Overholser, to ask the company, in making up the spring time table, to name the towns on the route to the town going to Greensburg and Pittsburgh may make connection with the Uniontown express at Tarr.

A turnout was requested in College avenue, next to the Harmon property. This was put in the hands of the street committee. Charles Zillman was granted permission to erect a porch at the west side of his Main street building under the supervision of the street committee and solicitor. Council decided to go in body this evening and look over the Yoder avenue lot of Elmer Baker, who it is claimed, is filling in and clearing up natural water courses, a proposal coming from him to find a use in the building for a water motor.

People in Warden street asked for protection and this was placed in the hands of the fire and water committee. The fire department is in a communication asking it to utilize a pool table in the firemen's room. This was placed in the hands of the property committee. The treasury reported a deficit of over $900 in the general fund and $1018 in the sewer fund. The burgess reported $500 fine and $8 in general license. His check of $100 was received and placed on file. It was decided to ask the Tri-Star Telephone Company to remove wire from trees in town where they had been used to support a wire for a water motor.

The large suggest, that $20 be given each police officer toward a new suit and this was granted.

It was decided to have clean-up signs placed.

Council ordered a charge of $2 per load for rubbish piled with new truck.

April 16 was to date set for a meeting to be called by Burgess Overholser for the purpose of forming a good roads organization.

Atter Funeral.

George Seiter and daughter, Lucy, attended the funeral at Washington, Pa., of Mrs. Toy Conner, widow of James Conner. Mrs. Conner's body was interred in the new cemetery at Washington.

Church Names Officers.

The Union Presbyterian Church held its annual congregational meeting last evening at which S. C. Stevenson was elected president of the congregation; Dr. W. A. Marsh, secretary; Miss Viola Stevenson, auditor; Mr. V. Lemmon, Abram Pershing, J. H. Wickman, Myers Speck, Michael Snyder and William T. Andrews, ushers; Dr. W. A. Marsh, director to the Jacob Justice Free Dispensary. The sum of $11,000 was spent by the congregation last year out of this amount $8,000 was raised.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Suggestions for Story Telling. In telling children stories, I have found that if a story is repeated it must be unchanged, and that repetition within a story is pleasing. Children also like a story to be concrete. For instance, if a party is brought into the telling, the like to know what names were played, what the girls had to eat, and what prizes were given out. These are simple points of child psychology, but they will make it easier for any one who wishes to be successful in amusing children.

HUMAN LIFE MERELY JEST

Mexican Authorities Place Rescue of Cattle Far Above the Salvation of the King of Animals.

In Mexico there is no law by which damages can be recovered for the loss of human life. But the loss of cattle is of far greater importance than the loss of human life. The Mexican law takes cognizance of cattle. When they are lost their value can be recovered, a singular distinction in the statutes of our neighbor to the south, though that is due perhaps to the fact that the court dockets there would be too hopelessly crowded if lives of human beings could be sued over. This legal anomaly was brought out in an investigation just concluded at Mexicali, Lower California, as to the wreckage of the steamer Topolobampo in the Gulf of California last November, when about 100 human lives were lost.

The cargo had been live stock and ruled, the wind having been damaged. But with the only difference of opinion at the hearing before the number of lives lost, a trial took in the year just told. When the high tide in the Gulf of California fell sharply, the Colorado river, forced back by the waters of the gulf sometimes for 40 miles, rushed down with immense tidal force, and ships that were, are not. That is what happened to the Topolobampo, with 80 or 100 Mexicans unaccounted for on land or sea.

Another Connellsville Case

It Proves That There's a Way Out for Many Subtitle Connellsville
 Folks.

In another report of a case in Connellsville, another typical case kidney disease is reported in Connellsville with Dean's Kidney Pills. Samuel Miller, father of 1st. Patrician, Connellsville, says: "I have had a butcher boy for years and the boy is running now and ready in poor condition. My wife and I have had a doctor and ached constantly. When I lifted a quarter of a pound of sugar, it was worse than through the end of my back that felt like a sharp knife. I became so bad I was unable to pass the kidney operations and I bled terribly. I couldn't work at all and I suffered much torture. I got Dean's Kidney Pills at the Valon Drug Co. and the continued use of them drove away every symptom of the trouble and I was cured."

The Sporting World

FINAL GAME IN FLOOR LEAGUE TONIGHT; FRAT TO MEET ST. VINCENT

Contest Will Be Played at High
School Gym at 8:15
O'clock.

CROWD WILL BE PRESENT

The Connellsville City Basketball League may come to an end tonight or it may continue for one more week. The game between the City Fraternity and St. Vincent will decide that. A victory for the former means a first place between the Green and Casey Club and a win by the Leisuremen will give that club the title without a play-off.

Great interest centers in tonight's game. The Casey followers will be as prominent in the crowd as those from Leisuremen, mainly because a Fraternity victory gives the Club of C-dribblers another "crack" at the pennant.

There has been considerable speculation over the possible outcome. Some feel that the St. Vincent five is too strong for the Fraternity, but the purple and gold boys themselves have no thoughts except to win. The Green team is the only club against which the Frat has not chalked up a defeat and that fact alone is going to make the game a hot one.

If the season closes tonight it will be the end of a fairly successful year and all the managers of the City League will quit satisfied. The year was not so good as last season but the organization lived through some rough spells and has strengthened its reputation for good floor contests. Interest has now reached a point where it indicates a better start next fall.

Because of the importance of tonight's clash and the fact that it may bring to an end the basketball season, one of the largest crowds ever present at a game is expected. The fact that the contests are being played in the High School has attracted the attendance, there being good seats for everyone. The game will begin at 8:15 o'clock.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS WILL BE GUESTS AT BIG DINNER TONIGHT

The members of the boy and girl basketball teams of the Connellsville High School will be guests tonight at the annual banquet for the players. The dinner will be served at 6 o'clock in the diningroom of the Trinity Lutheran Church. The event marks the final close of the winter sport season.

A feature of the program will be the announcement by Coach C. H. Wine of the names of men winning letters. It is likely that the election of a door captain for next season will also take place.

R. B. Smith, superintendent of schools, who is mainly responsible for the great strides athletes have taken in the institution here, will preside. Some of the boys will sit down for the last time as guests at such an affair, graduation in June completing their careers at Coker athletics.

Dick Guy, formerly Pittsburgh Leader sporting editor, is booking games for his baseball team, the Pittsburgh Collegians. The club never finished below the 50% percentage mark and this season Guy has collected a height squad of young athletes. For games write Richard Guy, Room 306, Mason Building, Fourth Avenue, Pittsburgh, or telephone 4649-1, Franklin.

The Pirates start north from Hot Springs today on a barnstorming trip to Chicago where they will open the season on April 17. The team looks better than ever before on its start from training quarters. The regulars won a seven inning game yesterday, 12-3.

HIT McGRAW ON NOSE.

Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants recently was threatened with an operation on the nose. It seems one novel had been closed and Metraw blamed the incident "Dumby" Taylor for his predicament. The "Dumby" was a famous pitcher of the Giants some 17 years back, and according to John J. one day while at practice before a game Taylor threw the ball when Metraw wasn't looking.

"The Dumby shouted to me," said Metraw, "but I naturally didn't hear him and the ball hit me on the nose."

The Mississippi Valley League at its meeting in Dubuque adopted a playing program of 130 games, with the season to start on May 1.

Both seemed to have the same viewpoint. It was this:

The more you play baseball the better you progress. The climate in the south and on the coast makes it possible for the youngsters of those two sections to play the national pastime two or three months longer than is possible in other parts of the country.

Both agreed that in the small town baseball was the chief amusement of most youngsters because there was little else to do. Also there was more room to play than the big city usually affords.

There are two opinions of two of the big stars of the game on why the south and the coast produce a majority of the stars and why the small town boy has a better chance at baseball than his big city brother.

Tiger lilies of July were swaying over the peaceful graves when the stillness was invaded by the stiff, mechanical and saturnine panoply of a modern burlap. The tears in the processional行列 were silent, and the remembrance, to have old Mark Jernyn beside the others of his generation.

Through the companion of family loyalty, Eleanor Jernyn, his great-niece, had been drawn most unwillingly from a house party several hundred miles away, where she had been having a highly satisfactory time. As she had known, Uncle Mark, she was feeling decidedly peevish over it. But in so far had she crossed the boundary line of the stream which divides the Deserted Village from the world of actualities than the spell of peace entwined her. Through the soothing cadence of the burial services she stood, half hypnotized, her face at once piquant and dreamy, vivid and possessed, in the dappled movement of shadow.

"It was thus that Robert Bennett first saw me."

With these same words that passed from him to her, at once resolute and compelling, drawing her gaze to the spot in the far corner of the church yard where he sat leaning against the bough of a giant elm? She answered that long, immovable look of life with the uncomprehending response of clenched eyes and parted lips of wonderment. And after the last motorcar had lumbered across the bridge at the close of the ceremony she remained, making the excuse to her friend that she had no desire to be alone for a while, and could send for her later. She stood, shivering with an edge of shuddering, her own name etched in the gray stone of a tall monument in the Jernyn plot.

(Eleanor Jernyn, wife of Samuel Jernyn; Born 1827, Died 1867.)

And beneath it that crypt of inincible faith, "Whither thou goest with me, thy people shall be my people and thy God my God."

Opposite stood the headstone of Samuel Jernyn, dead three years before his wife.

A voice spoke quietly close behind the living. Eleanor Jernyn: "That pledge was not for him."

"Not for Samuel Jernyn?" she queried. It seemed quite in keeping with the place and the spell that the voice of the stranger who had suddenly addressed her to stay should be telling her secret things of the past.

"You mustn't think it was for him," insisted the voice.

"How strangely you say that! As if I were angry. Or jealous."

"I'm not jealous," she said. "I just want to know the rest."

She followed him to the corner under the elm where he silently pointed out another stone inscribed:

(Calvin Bennett; Born 1822, Died 1859; Where thou dost, will I die, and there will I be buried."

There, then, was the clue to the dead; she sought the clue to the living.

"Did you come to the funeral?"

"Not your funeral, Mrs. Jernyn."

Both Jernyn and the amanuensis were for the moment relaxed. "My grandfather's?" She was but a few days ago all the same. "Samuel Jernyn, his son. It's in my great-grandfather's all that we shall."

"And all of us Jernyns, I'm Eleanor's son."

He nodded. "Of course. You had to be."

"Did I? Why?"

"That's what has kept me here, waiting when I should be home packing up for the interior of Brazil. I knew there was something telling me to wait. But I didn't know what. Until I saw you."

"I don't understand," she chided him. But there was a tone of expectancy, of suspense, of suspense in her voice.

"Who I go too fast? I suppose I do. But you see, I've waited so long."

"So long? Three days to your own account?"

"Seventy-five years," he retorted, with a gentle but firm, his assurance, as she ran to his arms. I found the street scene sufficiently agreeable, until Norrie's voice called me that they were aware of my existence again.

"We're going away," she announced.

"You must tell the family, Vix, dear."

"Must I? When are you going?"

It was he who answered, "Tonight."

"Indeed? Where?"

"Does it matter?" said she.

She was gray.

Then a million tons of light crashed down upon them from the ruined roof of heaven, and the two covering figures merged in the shock of that portent lay still.

Dim voices in the gray mist, voices out of a far past, speaking one to the other in the soft stillness of wind and rain and tempestuous leaves, a man-voice and a woman-voice.

The man-voice said: "Eleanor! My beloved!"

Keen with dread and pain, the woman-voice cried, "Why did you come back?"

"To claim you before the world."

"You come too late."

"Between us two no time can be too late."

"I am the lawful wedded wife of Samuel Jernyn."

There followed a long, straining hug; then the man-voice, directly, asked what we have been to each other?"

"That was our sin... Oh, Calvin, why did you not write?"

"I wrote. My messenger died on the way."

"That was our punishment," said the woman-voice fearfully. "You must go, Calvin."

"Go? Leave you? You are my wife, not his, in the sight of Heaven."

"No," the woman-voice denied, wearily and inflexibly. "I am bound in honor and in duty and in law. He is a good man."

"Eleanor!" cried the man-voice.

There was a sound of sobbing, hushed sharply, a cry of the agony of parting in the man-voice, and the man-voice once again, falling.

"I will go. But I hold you through time and eternity. Yours is the true marriage. I will return to claim you, though it were a thousand years. I bind you to wait for me."

It was thus that Robert Bennett first saw her.

With these same words that passed from him to her, at once resolute and compelling, drawing her gaze to the spot in the far corner of the church yard where he sat leaning against the bough of a giant elm?

She answered that long, immovable look of life with the uncomprehending response of clenched eyes and parted lips of wonderment. "Not for Samuel Jernyn?" she said.

"Everything."

"What does it mean?"

"What could it mean, except that we have come back to each other?"

"Don't!" she rebelled. "You frighten me."

He smiled at her, and her breath quickened in her throat. "Why should you be afraid, beloved?"

The blare of a motor horn brought Eleanor Jernyn to a sense of reality; she whirled briskly. "We're late!" she said, after the first sharp call.

"I will go. But I hold you through time and eternity. Yours is the true marriage. I will return to claim you, though it were a thousand years. I bind you to wait for me."

"Don't!" she rebelled. "You frighten me."

He smiled at her, and her breath quickened in her throat. "Why should you be afraid, beloved?"

The blare of a motor horn brought Eleanor Jernyn to a sense of reality; she whirled briskly. "We're late!" she said, after the first sharp call.

"I will go. But I hold you through time and eternity. Yours is the true marriage. I will return to claim you, though it were a thousand years. I bind you to wait for me."

"Everything."

"What does it mean?"

"What could it mean, except that we have come back to each other?"

"Don't!" she rebelled. "You frighten me."
